THE OFFICIAL NEWSLETTER OF ELECTRIC FOOTBALL

Fall 2007, Vol. XIII No. 2

THE MOTOR CITY TO HOST 14th ANNUAL EFL CONVENTION

The City known for being the Automobile Capital of the World, introducing the Motown Sound to America and home to some of the greatest Electric Football players and figure painters in the U.S. is hosting this year's Electric Football World Championships & Convention.

After many months of research and negotiations, Michael and Delayne Landsman of Miggle Toys are delighted to announce that the 2008 EFL World Championships & Convention will be held in Detroit from January 25-27 at the Embassy Suites Hotel-Livonia/Novi (Detroit, MI), located at 19525 Victor Parkway in Livonia, about 17 miles Northwest of the city's main Downtown area.

The 2008 event will mark the fifth consecutive year that an Embassy Suites property will serve as the host site of the weekend's festivities, which will continue the tradition of EFL coaches and their families enjoying all the conveniences, lodging space, complimentary extras and services that Embassy Suites so cheerfully provide.

"We want to give our guests not only the best Electric Football experience possible by the way we organize, manage and run our Convention," stated the Landsmans, owners of Miggle Toys, "but the opportunity to again stay in such a beautiful hotel that offers such roomy accommodations and generous 'perks.'"

The weekend will again kick-off with the highly-popular (and complimentary) Friday Night Reception & Dinner on Jan. 25, hosted by Delayne and Michael Landsman. In addition to the usual attempt at humor by Convention Coordinator Ira H. Silverman of Silverman Media&Marketing Group, the function will also feature the presentation of the "Coach of the Year" and other awards.

Competition in the Miggle EFL World Championships tournament and the Junior and Senior Spark Bowl events will commence on Saturday, Jan. 26, 2008. The World Championships will again be a 64-coach draw, divided into two Conferences, each with four eight-player Divisions. The Jr. Spark Bowl will be open to boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 11 as of the day of the event; while the Sr. Spark Bowl will be available to male and female tweens and teens from 12 to 15.

Coaches will once more be able to sign up to compete in the 2008 World Championships on the Friday night and Saturday morning of the Convention, with the format providing every coach with the opportunity to play up to seven games in the opening round of the tournament before playoffs begin. The formats for the Jr. and Sr. Spark Bowls will be determined on-site once it is known how many young coaches enroll in each bracket.

The Landsmans are also promising a great number of surprises, new activities and contests and lots more excitement at the 2008 Convention with the help and input of all of the outstanding coaches in the Greater Detroit area.

DON'T BE LEFT OUT—MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS EARLY!

Because of the large amount of coaches residing in Michigan and the surrounding states, Miggle expects a record turn-out for the 2008 Convention. The Landsmans have already checked prices with numerous airline carriers, and have found very inexpensive round-trip airfares available from dozens of major markets to Detroit—so we suggest you make your travel and hotel reservations as soon as possible.

Coaches can make reservations at the Embassy Suites Detroit – Livonia/Novi Hotel for the 2008 EFL World Championships & Convention in three ways: via phone, by calling the brand's toll-free number, 1-800-Embassy, and asking for the Embassy Suites Hotel-Livonia/Novi (Detroit); by calling the hotel directly at 1-734-462-6000 and asking for the "Special Electric Football Rate;" or by going on line to <http://www.embassysuites.com>, entering Livonia and the dates you plan to stay and scrolling down to Special Accounts and entering the code FWC in the Group/Convention Code box.

A LETTER FROM THE COMMISSIONER

Michael Landsman

Michael Landsman,
Commissioner

The year 2007 has indeed been an exciting one thus far at Miggle—filled with some great news and a few out-of-the-ordinary challenges

First, we had one of the best Conventions ever this past January in Jacksonville, FL, highlighted by seeing such a large number of familiar faces as well as hosting a hefty contingent of new people there. Many coaches who live very close to each other attended our Convention and played against each other—yet they had no idea that the others were there. My wife, Delayne, and I were so pleased that we were able to point out their geographic proximity and put them together to create additional coaches for their local leagues.

This year we also have expanded our efforts into the licensing of college football teams, increasing our anticipated roster of schools and—although these additions have not always come together as swiftly as we would have liked them to happen—we are now seeing the light at the end of the tunnel. We are so gratified that your reception to this Miggle decision has been welcomed so highly, and realize the passion and enthusiasm you have for your favorite college squads.

Our new paint line, long overdue, is now a reality. We know that we have the very best, lead-free, safest and highest-quality paints that can be produced, and you are going to love them. You can read more about them elsewhere on this page.

With your on-going support, Miggle will continue to design, develop and bring out novel products that will both excite and please you—such as this year's collection of new game boards. On the Electric Football side, there are our Electric Football Challenge and the Rose Bowl Electric Football Game. For futbol aficionados of another type, at long last, our International Soccer Challenge, a totally realistic vibrating soccer game, will thrill the millions of soccer fans around the world. As you know, soccer is known internationally as “football” and is certainly the Number One sport around the rest of the world. We are confident that this game will bring all of the thrills and excitement of this great pastime into homes world-wide.

Furthermore, we are pleased to say that the safety issues of toys that have grabbed the headlines and become one of AOL's most frequent search topics for months positively do not affect our products—as all of Miggle's toys, games and parts are inspected by the famed and highly-regarded Underwriters Laboratories. So you can continue to purchase the Tudor Brand and Miggle products with confidence that you are getting the highest quality and safety products on the market today.

Unfortunately for both you, our friends and consumers, and those of us at Miggle is the uncontrollable fact that deliveries have been very slow due to all of the bad press on toys, as well as the fact that China has tightened all of their controls with heavy restrictions. Rest assured, however, that

And to wrap up this column on a final positive and high note, Delayne and I are greatly looking forward to the 2008 Miggle EFL Electric Football National Championships & Convention in Detroit this coming January, where we are expecting to break all of the previous attendance records and have our most exciting, memorable and creative get-together ever! Don't forget to make your travel arrangements and hotel reservations extra early this year!

See all of you across the metal gridiron.

WATT'S NEW AT MIGGLE?

TEAMS, TEAMS AND MORE TEAMS

While most of Miggle Toys' new products are described in the Letter From The Commissioner on this page of PLUGGED IN! and shown on pages 11 and 12, we did want to let you know that we will be offering full-colored, “true to hue,” non-logoed painted figures of some of your favorite football teams in the near future.

London Union Jacks
Created by Al Dunham

In addition, many of you know that we ran a “Miggle Fantasy Team Contest” on the Miggle.com Chatboard recently, with the plan of selecting two or more squads as winners of the competition. Let us say that we observed tremendous creativity and artistic acumen by all participants in this competition. But clearly, two entrants stood out above all others and have been named our winners—and will have their imaginary squads added to Miggle's roster of new figures. The winners are Al Dunham of Grand Rapids, MI, with his London Union Jacks team, and Glenn Hardaway of Sugar Land, TX, who created the Munich Moon Sharks in honor of his dear friend, the late Doc Smeby, the American expatriate who brought our style of football to European athletes. Miggle congratulates both of them.

CUSTOM COLOR EFL PAINTS

Now available are Miggle Premium EFL Paints by Electric Gridiron, which are a special formula of water-based acrylic colors used for painting any and all teams by coaches, players, collectors and hobbyists of Electric Football. EFL Paints will take the guessing out of team color matching because they are especially developed to contain all the frequently used shades utilized by football teams across the country.

These new formulas are designed for easy use on plastics and metals and are resistant to scrapes and abrasions. Since all colors are water-based, they can be easily mixed with each other to achieve any desired hue. Our premium paints contain no lead or cadmium and no toxic odors—and clean-up is simply done with water. EFL

GETTING CONNECTED WITH...EFL LEAGUES AROUND THE U.S.

CHARLOTTE EFL IN ROCHESTER, NY

In 1981, the sports world saw Richard Petty win the Daytona 500, the Dodgers defeat the Yankees, 4 games to 2, in the World Series following a 49-day players' strike, Larry Holmes rule the world heavyweight boxing division, the Raiders turn back the Eagles, 27-10, in Super Bowl XXV and Tom Watson earn the green jacket at The Masters golf tournament.

It turns out that 1981 also was the year that the Charlotte EFL of the Greater Rochester region of New York State was born—and has been going strong ever since!

The Commissioner of the League is John DiCarlo, who told PLUGGED IN! that there are eight coaches in the CEFL who play from late October through the beginning of April in "Subterranean Stadium" (his basement), which is situated in the village of Charlotte (pronounced shar-lot), NY, which is located at the farthest north point in Rochester.

While Subterranean Stadium can only accommodate eight coaches and some seasons were lost between 1995 and 2005 because "of many of life's problems such as work and health," says DiCarlo, "we never disbanded as a league and we are now going as strong as ever and having more fun than ever."

The CEFL has two divisions—the Amps and the Volts—play a 14 game schedule followed by Playoffs and an All-Star Game. But the league really is all about camaraderie and family.

In addition to John and Dave Paprocki, both of whom are retired postal workers, and Ronnie Minni, John's grandson and a high school sophomore, the other five members of the Charlotte EFL are: Jim VanVelson, a retired mason; Peter (Hotsman) Dietz, a retired construction trade worker; Mike O'Neill, a contractor; Jim (Duke) DiCarlo, who's involved in assisted living building maintenance; and Wayne Root, a plumber. The designated "sub" is

DiCarlo, Jim Van Velson, Dave Paprocki

Kyle Paprocki, a 13-year-old 8th grader. "All of the coaches are great friends who have known each other for many, many years through good times and bad," conceded DiCarlo, "but Electric Football has been the glue that binds. The game has kept us all young at heart. We must be because our oldest player is 60 and we have only one coach under 50—my grandson Ronnie, who is 15. The game never gets old like we do."

Remarkably, Ronnie is the reigning champion of the CEFL. Notes his grandfather: "We all blame it on our bad eyesight, but it's really because I taught him to play the game when he was three years old. His passing game is unreal!"

The group's favorite anecdote involves the one and only time the league had to play outside Subterranean Stadium due to nine consecutive days of rain that flooded DiCarlo's basement before the last tilt of the season (the All-Star Game). They had to use another coach's home, where the wife of the house got to see the "boys" in action for the very first time. "As we were leaving," recalls DiCarlo, "she told me she thought that us guys getting together every week was something special"...and to us it still is!

GREAT LAKES ELECTRIC FOOTBALL LEAGUE IN TAYLOR, MI

According to Steve Martin (superior Electric Football coach and painter extraordinaire—and not that wild and crazy guy from

TV's SNL), the GLEFL was originally formed when a group playing out of Ann Arbor, MI, and a assemblage of coaches based in Detroit merged into a Monster League that now includes a remarkable 30 players, including coaches from as far away as Akron and Columbus, OH, and Gary, IN.

All league games in their full 16 game schedule are played in Taylor, MI, which is about 17 miles from downtown Detroit.

Now in its seventh season (the league kicked-off its 2007 campaign on Sept. 9), no individual coach has won the coveted league championship more than once. Perhaps that's because of the depth of talent among the league members, ranging from past Miggle EFL Super Bowl Champions Mark Klingbiel and Norbert Revels to dynamic contenders such as Frank

HOT WIRES!

Ray Bigham of Universal City, TX, is looking to join an EFL league in the Greater San Antonio, TX, area. You can reach Ray via e-mail at raybeuf159@yahoo.com.

Chris LeMay of Nolensville, TN, is looking for coaches to join a new Electric Football League he is endeavoring to launch in Southern Kentucky and Middle Tennessee as soon as possible. To become a founding coach in the Kentucky/Tennessee EFL, call Chris at 615-776-2360 or e-mail him at eflfanatic@comcast.net.

Chris also reports to PLUGGED IN! that he is an avid collector of virtually "anything football," which includes Electric Football games and figures from Miggle and Tudor, as well as other older manufacturers. "If I am not playing Electric Football or painting figures," Chris admits, "I am watching football on TV or reading a football book or magazine or scouring flea markets, yard sales, thrift stores and antique malls for anything related to the game...or surfing the web for anything I can find related to the sport and its history."

"It's amazing that I have time for anything else," he concedes.

At least Chris is honest about his passion.

James Shealey of Jonesboro, GA, is trying to restart the Georgia EFL (which originally played from 1998-2005) and is looking for both original and new coaches from the Greater Atlanta area to join him in his quest. James can be reached by phone at 770-256-2439 or via e-mail at JamesShealey@DeltaAirlines.com.

Brian Wittkop, Sr. of Monroe, MI, reports that he has started a football chatboard that covers all aspects of the sport—from the NFL and NCAA to Arena Football and NFL Europe—and, of course, his hobby of choice, Electric Football. Brian says that there are two ways to visit it: Number One—Go to his website (<http://www.webspawner.com/users/crush687/>) and scroll down to the bottom and click on chat board; or go directly to the link (<http://nmeffl.proboards54.com/index.cgi>).

"I hope everyone will enjoy this site," Brian wrote to PLUGGED IN!, "and, as always, it's totally free." ■

TRAINING CIRCUIT: TOP EFL COACHES PROVIDE TIPS ON KICK-OFFS

Of course, it is a cliché to say that no football game can begin without a kick-off, but doing it—and doing it right—are two entirely different things.

That's why the debut article in the new section that PLUGGED IN! is introducing in this issue—called TRAINING CIRCUIT—is focusing on the best ways to return a kick-off and the optimum methods of defending against long run backs.

And who better to join our Training Circuit in this edition of PLUGGED IN! than four of the top coaches in the business? If you want to learn how to start the game on offense in great field position ... or pin your opponent back in their own territory at the beginning of a contest, then read ahead for some very valuable lessons.

First, here's an overall look at the kick-off and the kick-off return from noted coach Myron Evans of the Philadelphia EFL:

KICK-OFF STRATEGY

In the PEFL, once both teams have set up for the kickoff, the field is turned on for two seconds to simulate hang-time on the kick. The kicking team then kicks off, directing the kick in a direction where there is the most coverage. The return team then puts a kick returner on the field based on where the ball is kicked. The kicking team is then allowed to turn any unengaged players towards the kick-returner, and in return, the receiving team can also turn players to block.

THE STRATEGY

(Receiving Team)

Since you would like players to stay back and block for the returner, it doesn't make sense to use fast players that run straight ahead because they'll run away from the coverage and not be able to block.

I place 10 tackle players across the front line with TTC bases that are slow and will run in a slow circle so that they don't run down the field and can stay back to block. I want the tackle figure because it has the long arms that can hook on to the kicking team's figures and prevent them from gaining penetration. If, after the two seconds are up, there are coverage players close to the receiving team players, those players can be turned to block because they have not run down the field away from the coverage team. I want a kick-returner who is fast, bounces out of piles and can run to either side to beat the coverage.

THE STRATEGY (Kicking Team)

Once the hang-time has expired, I look at the coverage to see where I have the most unengaged players to turn towards the returner and I kick in that direction. I want the opposite of the receiving team. I want the fastest players set up across the line who can get in the vicinity of the kick-returner as fast as possible to make the receiving team have to make a decision, as to whether to return the kick, or to take it at the 20 yard line. Since we are allowed to turn players that have gone out of bounds, sometimes I will point a few players to go out of bounds so that they can not be effectively blocked, freeing them up to be turned towards the returner without being caught up in a pile or being blocked.

Notes Mike Guttman of New Hope, MN: Every coach's dream is to return the kick-off for a TD since it's an easy six points in football. In most situations, the return team must choose their return man before the return starts, so you are planning the return before you know the situation. Some will pick loopers to try a sideline return, while others will just try the safest route up the middle of the field. The goal for most coaches is to get past the 20-yard line. If there is no chance of that happening, the safest call is to take the touchback and start at the 20. The rules do play a big part in how you decide to return the kick-off.

Mike Guttman

Add Keith Schultz and Twain Pigott of Baton Rouge, LA: "It is usually best to try to 'unintentionally' slip in an extra player and see if

EFL COACHES PREDICT WHO WILL MEET IN BCS CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

With Miggle Toys aligning itself with the college game this year, PLUGGED IN! thought it was an ideal opportunity in early September 2007 to survey EFL coaches all over the country to see who they predicted would reach—and win—the BCS Championship Game in the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on January 7, 2008.

A rousing 86% of those questioned picked the University of Southern California (USC) to make the grade for the title tilt, with 54.5% of the voters picking the Trojans to win it all. The most popular predicted match-up was USC and Louisiana State University (LSU), with five coaches picking USC to win this battle vs. two opting for the Tigers.

West Virginia received four votes to meet USC in the Sugar Bowl clash, with half the responders saying the Mountaineers would win and half stating that the Trojans would be victorious. Other multiple choices included USC over Texas and Ohio State University beating USC (although one voter in this group gave the University of Florida an equal chance to eke out a spot in the game over USC).

Single votes had the Trojans beating Florida State, the University of Michigan over Ohio State; the Buckeyes overtaking USC or Florida; Virginia Tech defeating Texas; Florida beating USC; the University of California at Berkeley beating Nebraska; and the Gators defeating intrastate rival, the University of Miami.

Among those coaches who predicted a USC victory (with their comments) were:

Terry Redden of Kearney, NE:

"I predict it'll be USC over Texas in the title game. These two powerhouses have the best athletes in the nation and the coaches are very savvy at mentoring that superior talent."

Aaron C. Johnson, Sr., of Canal Winchester, OH:

"I think USC has a seasoned team with a coaching staff that has been there and done that over the years. While LSU is strong and they are loaded with plenty of weapons and a tough defense, USC will win the game—but it won't be easy."

Jake Silverman of S. Bellmore, NY:

"USC will defeat West Virginia because they're just loaded and nasty. W. Va. will make it because RB Steve Slaton and QB Pat White are 'sick.'"

Terrence Williams of Novi, MI:

"USC is going to beat LSU because their overall offense and defense are better and USC has something to prove because of what happened last year."

Here are a few additional predictions from coaches around the country:

David Haydel of New Orleans:

"It'll be LSU and USC, with the Tigers taking it all. They will be playing in their own backyard and USC is due for a fall."

Ralph Hawkins of Oklahoma City: "I pick West Virginia over USC in the National Title Game. The Mountaineers play a 'cake' schedule in a conference with no title game...and the same goes for USC."

Joyce Rogers of Akron, OH: "I am picking Ohio State to beat either USC or Florida. The Buckeyes have talent and a long history of winning. Notre Dame and Michigan have already taken losses."

Gary Pate of Oxford, AL: "LSU will beat USC. The Tigers have it all together and it's time for them to do it. They have a lot of talent."

Keith Schultz of Baton Rouge, LA: "Even though I'm from this area, I'm not picking LSU for the Championship Game mainly because I went to school in Mississippi and I don't really like the Tigers. So, for me, it will be West Virginia over USC. I would have picked another school besides USC, but they've got such an easy schedule compared to the Southeastern Conference teams." ■

THAT'S WHAT FRIENDS ARE FOR...EFL!

As we all know, Electric Football cuts across all age groups, sexes, socio-economic backgrounds, races, religions and even time frames.

Sometimes, the game brings casual friends and buddies from work even closer together. In other instances, it reunites old friends who have lost contact with each other over decades and miles. And in other cases it makes life-long friends out of total strangers.

Regardless, Electric Football becomes the common denominator that acts like the glue between people. And for that, Miggle Toys likes to take a little credit and a lot of pleasure.

To prove these points, here are two stories that EFL coaches have shared with PLUGGED IN! that should bring a smile to your face and a pang to your heart!

Rodney Hankins (right) with friends

From Rodney Hankins of Brooklyn NY: "When it comes to Electric Football, over the years I've noticed that people are the closest when they are at the Miggle Conventions. Family and friends from all over the US come together for one great weekend of fun. For my own interests, I talked to two people about how they made special friendships over the years through Electric Football.

"Steven Martin from Detroit, MI, who started playing Electric Football at age four, and has been competing ever since, told me about the time he came to the second convention in Chicago, IL.

"He was displaying the Miggle Stadium that he had built and met Reggie Rutledge from Texas. They became fast friends. Over the years they would go out to dinner and Reggie would talk about Electric Football, family and friends," Martin told me.

"Later on, Steve met Jamal Lockhart a Police Officer from Florida. "Big Lock they call him," said Martin. "We became very close; we talk about the game of Electric Football and the different plays."

"One of the tournaments they went to is called the Sea Wall Brawl in Virginia, an event held to raise money for police officers who fell in the line of duty. After the event was over Jimmy Lockhart, a relative of Jamal's, rented a car and the three of them drove to the Navy Museum at the Washington Navy Yard. "To see those war ships, that was a great experience that I will never forget," Martin told me.

"Paul Bartels, known to us as Raiderman, is someone I met at the Miggle Convention a few years later in Washington, DC. Paul has been playing the game for 22 years, so he wanted to go to the Convention to see if he could win the whole thing.

It was at that Convention where he met Jim Davis.

Over that weekend and at other tournaments, they would frequently play against each other. Paul does not remember if he won or lost—although, more likely, he lost. Afterward, they went to a restaurant and "ate so much food the restaurant had to close for the night," Bartels said.

"The person who really stands out for me is a fellow I met at the DC Convention, Brian Wittkop, Sr. from Michigan. Brian has not been physically well, and he has been on dialysis for some time, so he cannot travel as much as he used to. Paul e-mail's him and sends him things; Brian is a big college football fan. Michigan is his team. Out of all the people Paul met at these conventions, Paul is most excited to see Brian this coming year in Detroit.

"As for me, I met my friend when I was in Philadelphia for my first convention (Convention #5 in January 1999). Saturday morning came and I went to get something to eat. I sat next to a woman and her family. They asked me if I was here for the convention, and I said, 'Yes I am.' Then they asked me if I was by myself, and I repeated, 'Yes, I am.' They then invited me to sit with them—it turned out to be Cindy Hargrave and her family, from Pennsylvania.

Lenny, Cindy, John & Elly Hargrave

"Since that day, I feel so close with them that they are almost a part of my family. When I was going through some personal problems, I did not know to whom I could speak. I decided to call Cindy and talk to her about what was going on. She spoke to John, her husband, and the kids, Elly and Lenny, and then invited me to stay with them for the weekend. I was happy to do it, and also got to see Elly and Lenny play their sports. I love them very much and can never repay them for all they have done for me—and no matter where I go or what I do, I will always have the Hargraves in my heart.

"For Paul, Steve and I, these friendships could not have been possible if it was not for Michael and Delayne Landsman. Their annual events help blossom such long-lasting and wonderful friendships over the years, and I'm sure many other people feel this way about Miggle's Electric Football Conventions." Rodney can be reached at RodneyHankinsSO@aol.com.

From Bernard Laster of Woodbridge, VA, who entitles his story, "New Friends Meet and Old Friends Reunite through EFL."

"Electric Football, to many people, is just a game to play with their children or grandchildren. But, I guess we do not realize that the game also affects us as coaches and people in many other ways, as well.

"Of course, there is the competition that we all crave, the rush you get after a big win and that solemn emptiness after a hard fought loss. What we do not always notice or appreciate are the friends we meet along the way.

"With every tournament, we get to see and talk to old and new friends, travel to different parts of the country and realize that we are not alone when we say we are in love with a game we could buy at a toy store. I would like to offer one scenario among many that took place because of my love for Electric Football

"The first time I entered a Miggle Super Bowl Convention arena, which was in Washington, DC, in Jan. 2000, I realized that there were thousands of EF enthusiasts out there besides myself. I knew we all had something in common, and this fact reminded me in many ways of the first time I went to school.

"At first, I kept to myself at the Convention—except for the occasional 'hello' and 'how are you.' I was anonymous, just like being a kid in the cafeteria. The place was buzzing with players from all cultures, ethnicities and genders. I had very few accessories for my team. I did not know that the culture of EF had evolved along in time to be as technical as every other time-tested novelty that we have owned and changed in our technologically-advanced culture.

"I thought to myself that this was a whole new, but still familiar, game that I had better adjust to quickly or I was not only going to be an outsider but also given a good old fashioned whipping on that vibrating tundra that I loved so much.

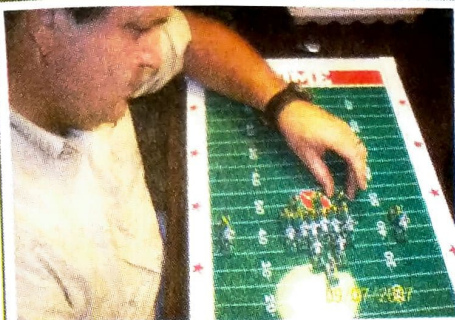

"All the vendors had everything you could think about, and many things that you never thought of, that would enhance your experience and your team. EF had evolved and endured the test of time."

"I still did not know anyone when I went to the free Convention Dinner that Friday night, but there were a few coaches who unknowingly eased a lot of my anxiety with their warmth, compassion and genuine love for the community of EF and the game itself.

IF YOU PLAY SOLITAIRE ELECTRIC FOOTBALL, YOU'RE NOT ALONE

Rob Plush

While Electric Football is continuing to grow and flourish in all corners of the U.S. these days—with leagues popping up literally everywhere—there still are areas and times when organized group play is just not possible. Rather than putting aside their figures and boards, however, a multitude of EFLers in this situation have turned to playing Solitaire Electric Football—either as a relaxing and rewarding recreational pastime or in leagues they create for themselves or with relatives and friends living a large distance away.

So to keep pace with this growing Electric Football phenomenon, PLUGGED IN! asked some of the most frequent and adept “Solitairers” to share their strategies, gamesmanship and playing styles with us so more of our readers can take part in this fascinating and challenging style of the game.

Ray Fanara of Brookville, MD (rfanara@verizon.net) uses Passing Sticks (i.e., lengths of wood cut at varying lengths for quick measurements). Depending on the distance between the QB and the intended receiver, he uses a different length stick to gauge the distance between the receiver and the ball placed on the field. Commonly referred to as a “pass simulation” or a “pass placement,” the sticks increase strategy and promote impartiality.

He also employs play-action on most downs, wherein the QB starts each play with the ball and has the option to pitch/hand-off, pass or keep the ball. This technique allows the play to develop on its own with the Solitaire coach taking the best option as it presents itself to resolve the play.

“If you are a coach who also competes in tournaments and/or regular leagues,” shared Fanara with PLUGGED IN!, “when you play Solitaire, use the rule sets you generally play by to gain familiarity with them and to become accustomed to the rules you will be using in competition. To accommodate multiple rule-sets, set-up a short season using one set of rules, and then start another season utilizing another set of rules.

Fanara also recommends—when involved in Solitaire competition—that coaches use basic defenses against a wide variety of plays, both runs and passes, to improve their results and their enjoyment of the game.

Ralph Hawkins of Oklahoma City and his son Adam of Minot, ND, as well as brothers Rob and Tim Plush of Colorado Springs, CO, who also are the Hawkins’ cousins, are all EFL Solitaire players, too. Their leagues and teams encompass current NFL, NCAA, Arena, CFL and even high school teams, as well as defunct leagues, such as the WFL and USFL—and in the future, they plan to add squads from the XFL and WLAF.

They point out that the most important rule in Solitaire play is to stay consistent with the way you play. “There are only so many offensive, defensive and special team formations that our ‘league’ allows,” they told PLUGGED IN!, “so we all use the roll of the dice and an ‘outcome chart’ for passing, field goals and extra points.”

The EFL quartet has their champions meet in title games once a year during the NFL Draft Weekend in late April in the Black Hills of Spearfish, South Dakota.

In their Solitaire play, there is no “stacking” allowed—which is several lines or “bunching up” of defenders at the line of scrimmage. There also is no “hooking” allowed, where a coach intentionally sets up a defender to hook the other player’s arm when going into a pass route.

“If an offensive team is in a third or fourth down and long situation,” stated Ralph Hawkins (Ralph.Hawkins@tinker.af.mil), “they must pass—as real teams would. If a team is losing by a significant margin, then they can exclusively pass—again, to emulate actual football strategy.”

While an important and integral benefit of participating in Electric Football is the collective socializing aspect of the game, when that communal avenue is not open, then Solitaire EFL is certainly a superb alternative. Just ask all the Solitairers playing the game solo today! ■

“The League also prides itself on great figure makers like Damon Lucas and Shawn Nobles,” boasts Martin, “and awesome painters like Bruce Watts and, of course, myself.”

The league maintains complete official stats and information on their website—glefl.com and <http://www.leaguedaddy.com/leagues/?lid=1645>.

Martin states that the Great Lakes EFL is always seeking new coaches, and those interested parties should contact league officials via their website or by calling Steve directly at 248-821-0375.

SEATTLE EFL ACADEMY ON ITS WAY

John Reed of Seattle, WA, is inviting area coaches to join his new Seattle Electric Football League Academy (SEFLA) for free as long as they make a commitment to show up for their scheduled games.

John “DJ-Copocira” Reed (who is the Academy’s co-commissioner as well as an accomplished entertainer) notes that his group is also seeking out coaches and players to start a youth football team, which would also involve cheerleaders, bands and announcers.

“We want to do the same thing as the pros and colleges,” Reed confirmed to PLUGGED IN! “Our Academy will teach the kids how to do the basics of all types of football. For instance, I know with the Electric Football, it will teach them to open their minds, be patient and understand football better. That way it will make it easier for the youth coaches. I know the Academy will work because the kids that I have taught went on to be No. 1 at all levels of football they played. I call it Shiolin Martial Arts of Electric Football. What I teach will improve children’s education, confidence and more.

To enroll in the program, or for more information, you can write to John—and include your name, full mailing address, e-mail address and best phone number at which to reach you through Nov. 20, 2007, at P.O. Box 4883, Rockville, MD 20849—or e-mail John at johnreedeflacademy@yahoo.com anytime. ■

TRAINING CIRCUIT: TOP EFL COACHES PROVIDE TIPS ON KICK-OFFS

your opponent can actually count. Trying to take advantage of an opponent is a recurring theme in our 'secrets.' "

With tongue firmly in cheek, four-time Miggle EFL Super Bowl champion Ron Bell of Violet, LA, says: I use the most expendable guy on my team to return kicks because none of his teammates are going to make the blocks they're supposed to make anyway and I need someone who I can afford to lose; not to injury, but to actually lose after I throw him.

One of the country's best-known and well-liked EFL coaches, Mike Pratt of Hollidaysburg, PA, is an expert on defending against the kick-off runback. He points out: "Now, let's look at the other side of the ball—defending against long kick-off returns:

"The most basic kick-off coverage strategy that has proven to be successful for me across my many rules is: keep it basic. Elaborate coverage schemes rarely work well since there are so many intangible factors involved.

Most importantly, stay in your lanes. Have the front line wedge busters run straight into the surge. Second, have the two most outside players run quickly down the field and curl slightly inwards to prevent wide returns. Last, use levels or layers on your coverage formation—like seven players on level one, including your outside gunners. Use three or four players spaced appropriately on level two. They are to reinforce the wedge busters and also cover for the outside gunners on level one. If only three players are used on level two, utilize one lone deep back to be aimed at the coverage's potential weak spot."

Mike Pratt

To wrap up this first edition of Training Circuit: the Kick-Off, we go back to our Miggle EFL webmaster, Mike Guttman, who contests that it is every coach's worst nightmare to have a kick-off returned for a touchdown.

"To prevent TD run-backs from happening," notes Mike, "most coaches will have players set up to try to prevent long kick-offs. In doing this plan, they will have as many as four figures placed to 'spin' in various locations on the field. Others will try to do both of the above mentioned. Of course, all these decisions depend upon the rules set up by the league or tournament you are playing in and in some cases your own solitaire rules."

PLUGGED IN! would like to thank all of the coaches, both these who were included in this article and those for whom we did not have room. All of your ideas, strategies and recommendations were superlative, and we only wish we had more space to publish all of them. ■

"I woke up Saturday morning excited as a five-year-old on Christmas Day. I had studied the rules and had my game face on. The pairings had me playing a coach from New Jersey. I did not pay any attention to where he was from; I did not care. I was going to kick his butt on the EF board.

"I grew up in Newark, NJ—that is when I first started playing EF as a seven-year-old. We all had our favorite teams, we kept stats, we had a league.

"Now it was my turn to play, and as I sat at the playing board running my men, I journeyed back in time to when I was seven and playing EF with all my close friends. My head was down as I was engulfed in my fantasy world when I finally noticed that my opponent had arrived and was standing at the table. I put on my player's face before I began to look up. I knew he was a big man and I got a little intimidated, but kept raising my eyes and I finally saw his face. He had a warm smile that felt familiar to me. I said, 'Hello my name is Bernard.'

"That is when he jumped up and knocked the table over and all the football men went flying everywhere. I was a little embarrassed and mad at the same time. He then ran around the turned over table and grabbed me in a big bear hug. I was kind of scared now; I thought he was going insane.

"I pulled back and said with an uncomfortable grin, 'What's the problem, Man!' That is when I really looked into his eyes and put his eyes and warm smile together. They were the same eyes and smile that he had when we played EF football together at seven! It was Marshall Dawson, one of my old friends who I grew up with playing EF. I had not seen him in 40 years! Our childhood love for EF had endured time and space and brought us back together again as old/new friends."

Bernard Laster can be reached at bernardlaster@earthlink.net.

Yes, the game of Electric Football is magical all within itself. But when you add the elements of friendship, camaraderie, history and compassion, you have a game, a competition and a hobby unlike any other in the world! ■

WHAT'S SO SPECIAL ABOUT THE CITY OF DETROIT?

Well, did you know that—in addition to being considered the Automobile Capital of the World and the home of the internationally-renowned Motown music sound—America's 10th largest metropolis can also boast the following accomplishments:

- Detroit is the home to five major professional sports teams: the Tigers (baseball), Lions (football), Red Wings (ice hockey), Pistons (men's basketball) and Shock (women's basketball).
- Detroit has more registered bowlers than any other city in America.
- Detroit is the birthplace and original home of such renowned and diverse personalities as Madonna, Francis Ford Coppola, Smokey Robinson, Charles Lindbergh, Aretha Franklin, Robin Williams and Joe Louis.
- Detroit is the home to the oldest State Fair in the nation, first held in 1849.
- Detroit is the Potato Chip Capital of the world, based on consumption.
- Detroit has the country's largest island park within a city – Belle Isle Park.
- Detroit is home to the world's only floating post office, the J.W. Westcott II, which can be found on the Detroit River.
- And, finally, Detroit is the home to some of the greatest and most avid Electric Football players in the world! ■

Family Activities To Do Around Detroit

Ford Field

Behind the scenes tours of Ford Field are available where guests can get a glimpse of Detroit's crown jewel and the home of the Detroit Lions and the NFL's Super Bowl XL. Ford Field represents Detroit's history and future in a single venue. Get a peek at a Ford Field suite, an NFL locker room and even stand on the FieldTurf for a player's view of the stadium. Public walk up tours are available at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Fridays in January.

Motown Historical Museum

Motown Historical Museum

This old Detroit home belies the greatness that was born here: the Motown Sound. But one step inside Hitsville, USA, the original house where Berry Gordy lived and recorded the Motown hits, and you'll catch the beat and spirit of this booming music era. Photos, costumes, artwork, music and other memorabilia take you back to simpler times.

The RenCen

The Renaissance Center is an icon for Detroit growth and revitalization. Located on the Detroit River, GM Renaissance Center overlooks Windsor, Ontario, Canada. The view is spectacular from the Wintergarden, a five-story atrium designed for retail venues and restaurants.

Detroit Historical Museum

The Motor City Exhibition, where visitors see how a Cadillac is assembled, is just one of the many entertaining and informative displays at this museum dedicated to telling the story of Detroit.

Model T Automotive Heritage Complex

This building is the first auto plant Henry Ford owned, and where he first built the Model T and experimented with the moving assembly line. There are a number of historic cars on display for fans of old autos who want to visit where it all started. ■
